Is Your Workplace Helping People Do Their Best?

People want to do their best, but obstacles get in their way. Here are some things that could be affecting your people, physically, socially, and mentally.

The high cost of pain

$7,400,000,000

Back pain costs companies $7,400,000,000.

$45 to $54 Billion

are lost annually to work-related musculoskeletal disorders, as measured by compensation costs, lost wages, and lost productivity.

Disconnected employees

The cost of disengagement

2/3

of people are not engaged at work. Disengaged employees cost the US economy as much as $550 billion a year in lost productivity.

Distracted workers

23 Minutes

Research shows that it takes 23 minutes on average to resume a task once you’ve been distracted.

50%

Workplaces that encourage social interaction foster close work friendships, boosting employee satisfaction by 50%.

$200 Billion

Is the cost of workplace stress (i.e., lost productivity, absenteeism, and worker's compensation) for the U.S.

Herman Miller

A healthy workplace contributes to the health of your bottom line

There are things you can do to create a workplace that makes it physically, socially, and cognitively easier for people to do their work and that, in turn, can help your bottom line. To find out more about how to create a healthy workplace through ergonomics, contact your local Herman Miller representative on 0845 226 9776.